Meetings

New Year, New Chapter of a New Organization

The Society of Chinese American Physician Entrepreneurs (SCAPE), founded in October 2014, had its first successful meeting in Sacramento, California on January 11, 2015. SCAPE was founded by Dr. Xiang Qian, MD, PhD, an ICAA member, and Associate Medical Director of International Medical Services, Assistant Professor of Anesthesiology, Preoperative and Pain Medicine at Stanford University School of Medicine. SCAPE has immediately drawn strong attentions from many American Trained Chinese Physicians (ATCPs) with similar interests, inspirations, and career goals. So far, more than 500 ATCPs from different specialties/subspecialties have joined SCAPE, making SCAPE the largest Chinese American Physician organization in North America.

Attendees (including phone participants) for January 11, 2015 Meeting include representatives from the following academic organizations:
- Chinese American Hematologists and Oncologists Network (CAHON, 美国华裔血液及肿瘤专家协会)
- Chinese American Heart Association (CnAHA, 美国华裔心脏协会)
- Chinese American Medical Association of California (CAMAC, 加州华人医生协会)
- Chinese American Pathologists Association (CAPA, 全美华人病理协会)
- Chinese American Society of Anesthesiology (CASA, 美国麻醉华人医师协会)
- International Chinese Academy of Anesthesiology (ICAA, 国际华人麻醉学院)

The topics discussed at the meeting include but not limited to:
1) US-China continuing medical education/Tele-education
2) US-China telemedicine, webcasts
3) Medical consultation service for Chinese physicians and patients
4) Various hospital consulting and collaboration projects,
5) Insurance services
6) 2015 annual meeting planning
Representatives from various associations exchanged information on their work. The secretary general of ICAA, Dr. Hong Liu from UC Davis Medical Center, Sacramento introduced the ongoing collaborations of ICAA with Associations of Anesthesiology in China, including Chinese Society of Anesthesiology (CSA), Chinese Association of Anesthesiologists (CAA) etc., and expressed the intention to collaborate with SCAPE as well in order to promote the development of both entities.

Attendees got together for a photo at the first SCAPE meeting in Sacramento, California on January 11, 2015. Dr. Xiang Qian is the 2nd from the left on the first row and Dr. Hong Liu is the 3rd from the left on the second row.

In the closing remarks, Dr. Xiang Qian concluded that: the short-term goal for SCAPE is to further improve the leadership structure and to upgrade current website; the middle-term goal is to market and brand SCAPE to Chinese public and to pilot-trial telemedicine, tele-education projects, and other US-China hospital collaboration projects; and the long-term goal is to form a strongly unified American Chinese Physician Society.
to give back to our community, and to have a strong influence on Healthcare Policies in both America and China.

The ultimate goal of the SCAPE is to “make a positive impact on the world” through the knowledge, talents, skills, experiences, expertise and diligence the members possess. They also have unique advantages due to their culture background, medical education, and professional networks in both the United States and China. The participants unanimously agreed that these attributes would enable SCAPE to proceed and succeed.

The founder of the Society of Chinese American Physician Entrepreneurs (SCAPE), Dr. Xiang Qian and the founder of the journal, “Translational Perioperative and Pain Medicine” (TPPM), Dr. Renyu Liu have reached an agreement that TPPM will be the first official journal of SCAPE.

The purpose of TPPM is to promote the translational medicine in perioperative care and pain medicine. The mission of SCAPE is to provide various levels of entrepreneur opportunity and to support fellow Chinese American physicians on translating their research, inventions, or innovations to clinical use, and to invest in healthcare entities. This perfect match will benefit the development of both SCAPE and TPPM.

Another official journal of SCAPE is “The Journal of Biomedical Research” (JBR), which publishes basic science research, clinical research, review, perspectives, case report etc. JBR has a PubMed index and all publications are stored at PubMed Central (www.jbr-pub.org). Publications including pictures in JBR is free of charge.
